The Yellowstone Winged Snakeman

By Paul Dale Roberts, Halo Paranormal Investigation

When my wife, Deanna Jaxine Stinson, lived in Deer Lodge, Montana, she visited Yellowstone National Park. As a psychic medium, she was drawn to the park and ended up exploring it at the Montana, Wyoming, and Idaho sides.

It seems that Yellowstone National Park, like many other national parks, is very mysterious and there seems to be some kind of paranormal connection. While visiting, Deanna was able to see Native Indian spirits from long ago. While she came across many other spirits in the park, she also felt an extraterrestrial presence.

The park does have many reports of UFO sightings. And I personally believe that because of the volcanic activity at this park, it is a "UFO gas station," a place where UFOs can acquire energy for their aerial crafts. UFOs are known to be attracted to active volcanoes, and many ufologists believe that volcanoes are an energy source for UFOs. There is a lot of good footage of UFOs hovering in different locations at Yellowstone.

The park has had its share of people going missing; for example, Stuart Isaac in 2010, Bruce Pike in 2006, and Daniel Campbell in 1991. These men turned up missing and were never seen again. The search parties did not find their backpacks or any clothing. They simply vanished. Could they have been abducted?

A Family Spots Strange Flying Creature

On March 11, 2022, I received a call from Chester Gorham of Grand Forks, North Dakota. He had an interesting story to tell me. In 1994, Chester and his family were on a hiking trail in Yellowstone National Park, when his 12-year-old son observed a strange figure in the sky. He started pointing to the sky, and what Chester and his family saw was a strange humanoid figure.

This humanoid figure had grayish green scaly skin. The head looked like a snake's head. The creature had what appeared to be bat wings. The hands on the creature were claw-like. The bottom half of the creature was a long snake-like tail. The flying creature slowly moved across the sky and went over a hillside, at which time it flew out of the family's view.

I asked Chester why is decided to finally report the sighting after all these years. Chester explained that at the time, he didn't want people to think he was crazy and he didn't want his kids to get bullied in school. Now that his kids were adults, he felt he needed to tell somebody, so he called the Halo Paranormal Investigations hotline to tell his story.

I let him know that in Mexico, there have been a rash of flying humanoid sightings. A YouTube video went viral of a flying humanoid in the city of Mexicali in the state of Baja California. Many skeptics believe that the sightings could be a group of balloons floating in the air that are tied together.

The flying humanoid looked like a man snake with bat wings.

I asked Chester if he believed that his sighting in 1994 was a group of balloons. But he stated that his flying humanoid was about 400 yards away in the air and he could make out the details. He confirmed that the flying humanoid he and his family saw was like a man snake with bat wings.

I found this description to be interesting, because a police officer in Mexico claimed he had a close encounter with a flying humanoid that looked like a wicked female witch or an evil female demon.

Deanna's Paranormal Encounters

During Deanna's exploration of the park, she felt strong residual spirit energy of the Nez Perce, Crow and Shoshone tribes. She also saw ghostly trappers along the river bed.

Deanna says that there is strong residual energy of the native Indian population that resided in Yellowstone many years ago, and the spirits of mountain men and trappers are all over the place. Deanna encountered a ghostly trapper that placed his hand on Deanna's shoulder, smiled, and told her to watch her step.

One interesting story about the park came from 1806, when John Colter, who was a member of the Lewis and Clark expedition, left the expedition and joined some fur trappers. Colter reported seeing a place of fire and brimstone. He called this place Colter's Hell.

Then other mountain men and trappers reported the same thing. They reported boiling mud, steaming rivers, and petrified trees. Most people hearing these stories thought they were made up, that the stories were merely myths from storytellers. Mountain Man Jim Bridger was known to be a spinner of yarns, so when he told people about the boiling springs, sprouting water, and a mountain of glass and yellow rock, they thought he was simply lying.

Yellowstone National Park is a very mysterious park. But it seems that most national parks are mysterious and they have high strangeness. It has UFO sightings, ghost sightings, and flying humanoid sightings. ◆
